

Daddy, Can We Play in the Workshop?

This short picture book is about a father and son who discover the joy of woodworking with hand tools. Daddy only uses power tools, but discovers hand tools after his son wants to play in the shop. The story is illustrated with black and white photographs of a father and son using old woodworking tools. The text is a mixture of very basic woodworking instruction, preschool humor, and a little adult humor. This engaging story is perfect to read to a 2-6 year-old child before bed. Printed in the USA.
