

When Life Hurts Too Bad to Laugh

Take a deep breath and put your shoulders back and look life straight in its eyes and say you can make it; say out loud, a?I am going to make it.a? Prepare yourself for joy in the midst of sorrow. Imagine being stripped of your joy and never being able to really experience the true joys of life, like turning 16 and having a sweet sixteen party, or going off to college and getting a degree, or getting married and never having a honeymoon, then having your first child and not being able to experience the joy of that, always having negative thoughts and feelings of not being worthy. This story reveals the pains that one young women had to experience in her life. How her life was changed from being a victim to becoming victorious. How she now experiences.
