Jeanette is a beautiful farmgirl whose life is a horror. Everybody on the farm abuses her, she is scorned by the man she loves and is not even allowed to have orgasm until her debonair aunt from Paris visits her and changes her name to Franfrella. Then the good life starts in earnest. She gets to meet the charming Firmin Denis, son of a well-to-do farmer who teaches her more sophisticated sex techniques. Then she finds fulfilment in the hands of Silvio Bordoni and his travelling theatre group before she finally leaves for Paris, City of Lascivious Lights. Executed in Foxers unmistakable style, mixing gorgeous chiaroscuro, daring perspectives and tasteful use of greytone, this book is assuredly a worthwhile addition to any collection of erotica.
