

The Man Who Talked to Suns

He was a man who talked to suns; a starship pilot. He was one of the few with the temperament to persuade stars to lift giant vessels between worlds. His profession had spanned the void of space and connected island solar systems. It was revered and protected by convention. At least that is how it had been. Now he is a fugitive, hiding from enemies that defied convention and brought war to his world. He has hidden for decades far from home. He has shunned the ports and ships he used to love, and longed for the void every day. The enemy still hunts him and nowhere is truly safe. Hopes of returning home have faded with the years. Then one day a secret buried deep in his subconscious is revealed, and new possibilities unfold. What he learns starts him on a journey across worlds. It is a journey that leads him deep into a web of alien intrigue. It reveals that he was not a victim of war but its cause, and if he can talk to suns again, he may ultimately be its end.
