

Notes on Psychology From Lectures Given (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Notes on Psychology From Lectures Given It is to be regretted that there is no stereotype edition of so valuable and necessary a set of printed notes; that every Junior Class must needs go to the expense of reprinting them. But such is the case, and this edition pretends to be nothing but a reprint of the former one. No changes have been made. None were thought necessary. We only hope that this may give a fresh impulse and aid to the study of Psychology, in which Princeton has been so long pre-eminent.
